OLFACTORY TASTING

What does a memory evoke most in us? The scent of our home, the warmth of a fireplace on winter nights with scents of resins and woods, a hot summer... nights of smells of dancing and running along the seashore, the scent of talcum powder after a bath and of flowers blooming in spring tickle the senses... Emotions open the drawer of our memory, faces emerge in our mind: grandparents, friends, teachers and school desks, holidays, tears, breakups ... it is good for the heart to remember, it is good for the spirit to close the eyes and go back with the mind... to find the scent of life.

TEA TIME

According to Chinese legend, it was in 2737 B.C. that Emperor Shen Nung, also known as "The Divine Healer", an expert in botany, discovered tea by chance while sitting under a plant, drinking boiling water, and a leaf from the plant fell into his cup.

The emperor is said to have tried the tea and liked its taste so much that he ordered its cultivation throughout China. This is how the story of tea began according to the world's greatest drinkers.
